About the Seminar

Merely managing store manager performance is not an option in today's extremely difficult trading environment. Improving and further developing store manager performance will be absolutely vital in 2010 if retail organisations are going to survive and thrive.

Performance management when working at a distance is extremely challenging and to do so effectively, area managers need to be fully aware of all procedural aspects of 'Manager' performance management and exceptionally skilled in the use of the performance management tools available to them.

We believe we have the understanding, experience and credibility to train, coach and support area managers in Improving or if necessary Removing the poor performing store manager.

This taster seminar is an ideal opportunity for the executives and HR support personnel responsible for area manager performance to:

- Meet us
- Review our training material
- Experience our style and delivery
- Discuss the challenges regarding area manager training and development
- Discuss the area manager role with executives from other organisations

By the end of this seminar participants will have:

- Analysed the true role and function of the area manager
- Identified the true competencies of area management
- Reviewed how area manager performance needs to be managed
- Participated in a number of area manager development exercises and commented on their relevance and effectiveness
- Discussed area manager development opportunities that do not take area managers away from the workplace
